SWEP-MA Professional Development Event

November
1st 2012

"Every perception is reality: the critical component to an accurate self-perception is understanding how others really see you."

Most people have a perception of self that is different from the perceptions of others. This difference inhibits successful interactions with others and eventually affects job performance. This professional development opportunity will discuss the three crucial elements needed to bridge the perception gap: specifically (1) value development, (2) emotional intelligence development and (3) best practice assessments/tools for evaluation.
